Why Economics ?

Everyone is a part of economy and bound to its rules. From the time we are born, we become consumers of various goods and services. We grow and diversify to attain various different roles as producers, traders, mediators and agents. Today's world is of "economic imperialism", where economical factors, most importantly, money dictates all the elements of the society. With recession wreaking havoc, economics is something which even ignorant households are learning naturally. To list all the important functions of economics would be literary impossible as newer issues keep creeping up. In the following lines, we have described some broad and basic functions of economics.

- Virtually every major problem facing the world today, from global warming, to world poverty, to the conflicts in Syria, Afghanistan, and Somalia, has an economic dimension. One needs to understand economics to be the helping hand to such issues.

- A basic understanding of economics makes you a well-rounded thinker. You will find new ways of thinking about current events and about personal and business decisions, as well as current events and politics.
